DOE National Science Bowl® Update: Only 16 Teams Remain in the High School Competition

Washington D.C. – The field of high school finalists in the Department of Energy National Science Bowl® has narrowed, and now only 16 high school teams remain in the competition.

The teams remaining are:

- Dougherty Valley High School, San Ramon, California
- Eastside High School, Gainesville, Florida
- Ladue Horton Watkins High School, St. Louis, Missouri
- Lexington High School, Lexington, Massachusetts
- Lubbock High School, Lubbock, Texas
- Mira Loma High School, Sacramento, California
- Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Maryland
- Naperville North High School, Naperville, Illinois,
- North Carolina School of Science and Math (High School), Durham, North Carolina
- North Hollywood High School, North Hollywood, California
- Ridge High School, Basking Ridge, New Jersey
- The Davidson Academy (High School), Reno, Nevada
- The Harker School (High School), San Jose, California
- The Westminster Schools (High School), Atlanta, Georgia
- Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology, Alexandria, Virginia
- University High School, Irvine, California

The top two teams will receive $2,500 to take back to their schools to support their science departments.

The top four teams will receive $2,000, the top eight teams will receive $1,500, and the top 16 teams will take home $1,000 for their schools' science departments.

Altogether, nearly 10,000 high school students and more than 5,000 middle school students from all 50 U.S. States, District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico participated in this year's regional competitions.

DOE created the National Science Bowl® in 1991 to encourage students to excel in mathematics and science and to pursue careers in these fields. Approximately 325,000 students have participated in the National Science Bowl® since its creation. Students may sign up to compete in next year's National Science Bowl competition beginning in October.

DOE's Office of Science manages the National Science Bowl® and sponsors the finals competition.
